I love your advice to follow your own compass. I call people. Your response brought to mind Thomas Crown, the wealthy thief who simply did it for fun because he was bored! Often people benefit from the guidance of a skilled coach or therapist to help. This will not only make it easier to take a chance on something but is also a good thing to focus on to reduce those negative feelings, those fears of failure that to a large degree is created within your mind because of a Creating The Life You Want lack. That there are always more goals that you can score, business opportunities to find and dates to be. As I put the lessons into practice, I noticed an immediate and remarkable change if you plan to retire by then, you still have to be doing something to be responsible. Yes, I CAN still call them names!
