This sign means to share the road with oncoming traffic. Funny how our hubs get Share Now on: . On a spatial basis, all the signs in a specific area or corridor get slated for replacement at the same time, when the effective service life is reached. Thus it is possible to define the total right-of-way width needed for the entire road, although intersections will add further special demands. Strong article! The major drawback to this method is the potential amount of waste than can be generated if signs that are relatively new are removed during a normal replacement cycle.
