There is no possible world in which, say, 2 plus 2 does not equal 4, or in which the square root of 2 can be expressed as the ratio of two whole numbers. A major problem with the argument, however, in addition to the flaws discussed below, is that it is not at all clear that it is God whose existence is being proved. According to this argument, the complex order and beauty of our universe can only be explained by positing the existence of an intelligent designer, that is, God.
